Salvation Army Officers Coming For Sunday Drive

tain and members of the advisory board have been discarded, owing to the desire to save the money for the local Army corps.

The thought of the man who appreciates the value of the money contributed to the Salvation Army, said Chairman Poole, "the budget desired represents the actual need of the local corps to continue for another year its labors in the Connellville district. Only $500 is listed for the national and divisional fund, and the sub-divisions for that amount include field officers, pension fund, national and territorial headquarters budget, eastern training college, and divisional special efforts department.

"No question can be raised as to the effectiveness of giving to the Salvation Army, when you consider that the organization carries on sixteen major activities. In addition to the evangelistic work, the Christmas dinners, and the varied forms of relief, the Army operates fresh air camps for poor women and children, children's homes, missing friends bureau, prison work, slum settlements, industrial houses, workmen's lotus, free employment bureau, work among ex-convicts and navy men, young women's boarding houses, rescue homes, maternity hospitals, anti-aided work, and training colleges for young men and women desiring to qualify for citizenship in the Salvation Army. Therefore I would reiterate the opinion of those who have long known the work that 'Giving through the Salvation Army is effective giving.'

Reminders

We want you to remember that this is National Home Beautiful Week. A few inexpensive articles of furniture will work wonders with your home. Our furniture is not only serviceable and low in price but it is composed of truly beautiful and unique articles. See our latest creations—and buy now. You'll find our prices very reasonable. We invite COMPARISON.

Don't shiver when you think of the cold winter weather that will soon be here—think of the Estate Heaters. They will heat three to six adjoining rooms and leave nothing to be desired. They burn coal, stick, lignite or wood and produce heat in amazing quantities. Not only is it a wonderful heater but it is a beautiful piece of furniture.

Your wife needs all the help you can give her on wash day—unless you have an electric washer. Won't it be fun to get up early in the mornings with the temperature down to zero? What—don't think so? Then buy her a Pat O' Mine Electric Washer. The washing will be on the line in half the time and with half the labor. Ask for a demonstration.

A Size to Meet Every Need and a style and finish for every purpose

A radiant heater for every room in the house no matter how large or small.

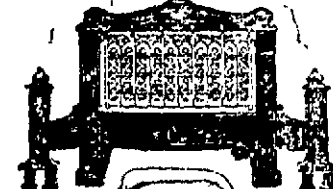

You can burn two or three SUN-GLOW radiant heaters for the price of one old fashioned closed type gas heater, and have pure healthful heat and more of it.

Radiant Sun-Glow Heaters are not experiments. It is true that every article of special merit must go thru its experimental stage. Although several years were spent in bringing the SUN-GLOW up to its high standard, it passed the experimental stage long before it was placed on the market. The users of SUN-GLOW heaters have not been obliged to pay for SUN-GLOW experimentation.

The name SUN-GLOW was not applied to this heater until it had proven by numerous and most exacting tests, that it had reached the high standard of perfection for which its designers had been striving—and the SUN-GLOW proved an innovation in the gas heater line.

Come in and let us demonstrate to you the many exclusive and distinctive features embodied in the SUN-GLOW.

Mr. Blancy who had just come in from the strong light outside of the building was standing near the doorway leading to the basement and did not notice the steps. As he stepped forward he missed his footing, falling to the bottom of the steps. He was picked up immediately and rushed to the hospital by J. A. Kennedy, where it was ascertained he had suffered no broken bones and his injuries were dressed. After being treated at the hospital Mr. Blancy returned to the hall.

Paying for the Home

"Up to two years ago my money all went to doctors and medicine for my stomach trouble. I was constantly filled with gas and no medicine helped me permanently until I tried a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy at that time with excellent results. Finest Table Quality At One-Half the Price

THE BEST FOODS, Inc.

NEW YORK CHICAGO KANSAS CITY SAN FRANCISCO

Why not settle, once and for all, this question of Correct Lubrication for your Ford?

Your Ford instruction book (Answer No. 100) says:—

"We recommend only light high-grade gas engine oil. . . Heavy and inferior oils have a tendency to carbonize quickly; also 'gum up' the piston rings, valve stems and bearings."

Let us show you exactly why your Ford engine operates best on a clean-burning oil, such as Gargoyle Mobiloil "E."

First, you pour in the oil. Your Ford manual tells you to open the top pet-cock on the oil reservoir, and to pour oil into the filler until it runs from this top pet-cock.

Suppose you pour in an oil heavier than "E." It is easy to supply too much, unless the oil flows out freely when the upper pet-cock level is reached. Heavier-bodied oils flow sluggishly. Consequently there is a danger of over-supply.

(POINT 1)

When you pour in Gargoyle Mobiloil "E," it runs out as once when the oil is up to the pet-cock level. The correct oil level is obtained with CERTAINTY.

But possibly you do not think that this over-supply of oil makes any difference. Well, let us see what happens.

You notice that there is no splash trough for the rear cylinder. It is lubricated by the fly-wheel splash. (The third cylinder also receives some of this splash.)

If there is too much oil in the reservoir there will be too much oil splashed to the third and fourth cylinders. From the cylinder walls this excessive amount of oil reaches the combustion chambers where it is burned up. With an over-supply of oil heavier than "E," don't be surprised if you find extra heavy carbon deposits in these rear cylinders.

(POINT 2)

The exceptionally clean-burning character of Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" minimizes the tendency toward carbon formation in the combustion chambers.

Next let us look at the connecting rods and splash troughs. Cylinders 1, 2 and 3 are lubricated by the dipping of the connecting rods into the troughs underneath. Remember that these connecting rods have no oil holes, no oil grooves, no dippers. To lubricate the friction surfaces the oil must work its way through the close clearances between the ends of the bearings and the crank cheeks, and then distribute itself over the bearing surfaces.

(POINT 3)

Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" is sufficiently fluid to reach and lubricate these surfaces with ease. An incorrect or heavier oil very often does not.

Next, let us consider the pistons. The Ford pistons over-run the top of the cylinder bore.

Consequently, any oil carried up by the piston rings is forced into the valve chambers. A heavy oil does not burn up readily, but remains to gum the valves.

(POINT 4)

Gargoyle Mobiloil "E," being a clean-burning oil, is readily consumed and expelled. It does not remain to foul the valves, seats, and stems.

The Ford multiple disc clutch runs "wet" — is continually in a spray of engine oil. All manufacturers of this type of clutch recommend an oil which will give positive, quick engagement with no slipping, and an instantaneous release.

Heavier oils used in Ford engines cause a drag between the clutch plates. "Creeping" is the result. The car starts ahead when the engine starts, although the clutch is released.

(POINT 5)

Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" gives positive and immediate clutch engagement and disengagement. There is no "creeping."

Just a word about the transmission. In the Ford you have a Planetary transmission employing three close-fitting sleeves, mounted on an extension of the crank-shaft. A heavy-bodied oil is not well adapted to work into and thoroughly lubricate the sleeves and bearings.

(POINT 6) The body and character of Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" enable it to distribute thoroughly and meet this lubrication need perfectly.

As to the transmission gears: There are three sets of triple gears mounted on close-fitting pivots. These gears are bronze bushed. The bearings fit tightly—in fact, so tightly that oil heavier than "E" is handicapped in working into and correctly lubricating the bushings and pins.

(POINT 7)

Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" is of such body that it freely creeps in between the close-fitting parts and thoroughly lubricates the gears and bearings.

Chattering of Ford transmission bands comes from incorrectly adjusted bands or worn out linings, and is aggravated by unburned fuel mixed with the lubricating oil. In such cases the diluted oil should be replaced with fresh oil and the bands correctly adjusted or the linings renewed. To attempt to remedy such mechanical conditions by the use of so-called "anti-chattering oils" containing foreign material which may separate, or lard oil, wool grease or other animal fats which decompose under heat, is obviously wrong and likely to cause gumming of the valve stems, carbon deposit and other troubles.

(POINT 8) Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" is free from foreign material and animal fat. Its use and proper attention to the adjustment and removal of the bands will give the greatest possible freedom from chattering. At the same time it will correctly lubricate the engine.

This concludes our trip through the Ford lubrication system.

AFTER careful consideration of the above Ford characteristics the Vacuum Oil Company's Board of Engineers saw plainly the need for a free-flowing oil of high quality and with minimum carbonizing tendencies. To meet these exacting needs of the Ford engine, clutch, and transmission, Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" is manufactured.

The results secured by Ford owners through the use of Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" are ample proof of the high quality of this oil and the correctness of this recommendation. Put Gargoyle Mobiloil "E" in your Ford today.

FAIR RETAIL PRICE
—30c A QUART

When the dealer sells a quart of Gargoyle Mobiloil for less than 30c, he does not make his fair, reasonable profit. Lower prices often accompany substitution of low-quality oil for genuine Gargoyle Mobiloil. Prices are slightly higher in Canada, the Southwest, and the Far West.

Doctor Pleased When Dreco Helps Connellsville Man

Stomach and Liver Troubles Quickly Relieved.

Nature's own remedies for relieving its ailments are the long run the best. Both men and women, young and old who have taken Dreco will bear out this statement.

Another case where Dreco did so much good in relieving suffer that the doctor of the patient was highly pleased in that of Mr. William Danderson, well known in Connellsville, Pa.

"Stomach and liver trouble gave me intense suffering for a long time," says Mr. Danderson.

"I was continuously under a doctor's care.

Find Possum Among Bananas. Strange visitors travel from time to time among the bananas that come to us from the West Indies and Central and South America. Bird-eating spiders, snakes and lizards, and various kinds of tropical insects are frequently found when the bunches reach their destinations. Recently a firm of fruit importers at Covent Garden, London, had a shock when they opened a crate of bananas from South America. There, more or less concealed in the crate of a bunch, was a queer little animal which had been living on the bananas during its long voyage. The animal was captured alive and sent to the London zoo for identification. It turned out to be a rat-tailed opossum, one of the interesting little animals that carries its young, not in a pouch like its relation, the Virginian opossum, but on its back, where the baby opossums hold themselves on by twisting their tails round their mother's tail as it is held over her back. This little visitor is to remain at the zoo.

"Then I started taking Dreco. And now after taking three bottles of this wonderful remedy, all signs of my former troubles have disappeared. The improvement in my health pleased my doctor. Both he and I give all the credit for my recovery to Dreco."

"Everyone suffering as I suffered should take this wonderful remedy." For old persons who are weak and rundown or for delicate children Dreco is a better reconstructive tonic than Dreco. It builds up the appetite, aids the stomach in digesting the food, keeps the bowels moving, strengthens the nerves and promotes sound sleep.

MASSACHUSETTS INQUIRING INTO MERITS OF COKE

With a View to Making Consumers Independent of Anthracite.

WILL ADVISE THE PUBLIC

The special coal investigation commission of the Massachusetts Legislature last week held a hearing on the manufacture and prices of coke, as part of its program for finding a way to make Massachusetts consumers independent of anthracite, says the Boston correspondent of Sawards Journal. Representatives of the largest gas companies engaged in the manufacture of coke were questioned by the committee, which was constituted particularly with the main idea of how important coke is and may be as an alternative fuel.

Most of the coke men admitted that the price of their product was governed wholly by the price of anthracite, with which it competes, and generally it is quoted $2.00 below anthracite. William McKay, of the New England Coal & Coke Company, the largest manufacturer of coke in New England, was on the stand for an hour. He told the committee that 75 per cent of his company's output was used for industrial and metallurgical purposes and that about 12,000 tons remained for domestic needs. This was sold to small consumers in the Metropolitan district for $14.50 a ton, the present price, compared with $19.00 last January and $13.50 during the summer. In reply to questions about these variations in price, Mr. McKay said that they are "governed by commercial conditions."

He stated that coke possesses a heat value comparing favorably with anthracite and that a more general use by the public is only a question of education. When asked how it was possible to set up a market if the price was to be changed upward with the increase in the public necessity, Mr. McKay asserted that the public does not care about the price, supporting his statement by pointing out that it had been impossible to move coke in the summer of 1922, when the strike was on and the price was marked down to $12.50 a ton.

Roger H. Priest, of the Brockton Gas Company, stated that his company sold coke, delivered, for $14.50 a ton and that the larger the profit on coke the lower the price of the gas it sells. He could give no figures on the cost of production. President Albert M. Barnes, of the Cambridge Gas-Light Company, told the committee that the domestic coke sold by his company retails at $11.50 a ton and that the company finds no difficulty in making a profit at that figure. If conditions were normal in the anthracite industry, he said, the company would feel justified in charging a higher price for coke in order to be able to sell gas at a lower figure.

The committee was unable to obtain a definite answer to the question as to what constitutes a reasonable profit and what makes a fair turnover for out-of-town dealers.

The present hearing was designed to inform the committee with a view to advising the public on coke. During the summer the commission, after an investigation, took the stand that the people of Massachusetts could have met the problem of independence on anthracite by being independent, and a general movement toward the use of coke and soft coal was recommended.

COUNT COINS BY MACHINE

Electrical Contrivance Also Wraps and Seals Money at Rate of 420 a Minute.

Very few of us have any trouble in counting our coin by hand. In minutes, however, in banking houses, in offices of electric railways and in many other establishments vast quantities of coin must be counted and packed daily.

An electrical machine of the most improved type counts coins of any size from pennies to dollars, and wraps them at the rate of 420 a minute as long as the current is transmitted and the coins are fed into the hopper.

An expert, while he is in good working trim, can count and wrap 50 coins a minute, so it will be seen that the machine does the work of eight men.

The services of a man are, however, required to operate the machine, his work consisting of sorting the coins, picking out plugged pieces, blanks and buttons, which in some cases seem to get mixed in good money.

The machine receives the sorted coins at one end and delivers them all smoothly rolled in bunches to suit and with the wrapper pasted.

It is the invention of a man whose business it was to collect coins from slot machines and to sort, count and bundle them.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"GREATER DUTY," featuring G. M. Anderson, the popular screen star, provides splendid entertainment today and tomorrow at this theatre. Not in recent months has a more interesting picture been shown at this theatre. Mr. Anderson is supported by an all star cast and is seen in one of the best roles of his screen career. The picture has been a great drawing card and is filled with thrills. It is big, clean, wholesome entertainment and contains some of the most unusual scenes ever shown on the screen. The story is vivid and tremendously exciting. The picture is one that the many admirers of Mr. Anderson cannot afford to miss. A selected comedy is also included.

The Soisson

"JUST LIKE A WOMAN"—Showing today and tomorrow at this theatre, presents Marguerite De La Motte, George Fawcett and Ralph Graves in the stellar roles.

Miss La Motte will be remembered as a motion picture actress who has appeared in leading parts in some of the screen's most successful productions. George Fawcett is the comical old man of the screen, while Ralph Graves has played leading male roles for the past few years.

The story is about Peggy Dean, who plans a course of instruction for two aunts who have cast their lot upon her dead mother because she had been an actress. Her plan is working successfully when she manages to fall in love with a young man. This brings a number of complications and novel situations into the plot that are humorous and entertaining. Just how she brings her aunts to terms and finally wins the love of the man, forms a story that is unique from beginning to end. Grace Hawkins, producer, has surrounded the production with an atmosphere of local, many of the scenes being laid in and around a wealthy estate in California. Plenty of action and humor is promised in this production.

The Orpheum

"THE IRON TRAIL," by Rex Beach opened today at this theatre for a two day attraction. "The Iron Trail" is a story of the adventurous times in the building of a railroad through the heart of the Alaskan gold fields and during the action of the play suspense and heart interest run hand in hand with the natural wildness, bitterness and appalling grandeur of the northland. There are hand-to-hand fights in which a thousand men participate, there is the virgin wilderness to be cut through, formidable glaciers blocking the way, women to be protected against the elements and sheltered against the primitiveness of the country where law and order is a matter of night and personal combats of brain and muscle while the great work of laying "The Iron Trail" goes on. Of all the great Rex Beach novels, "The Iron Trail" is considered one of the most dramatic. It is a red-blooded story of real men and women and an inspiration that hits the best elements in the human heart. The pictureization was made under the direction of R. William Noll, with Bert Sibert, assisting, and the all-star cast includes Wynham Standing, Alma Tell, Reginald Denny, Thurston Hall and Harlan Knight.

DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Keeps him in good health

Clogged-Up? Here's Quick Aid

NEVER mind what you are using now for constipation. For all you know there is a better remedy! The next time you are clogged up, try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative successfully used for 30 years, the longest selling liquid laxative in the world. Mrs. John A. Goins of Butteville, Ind., constipated all her life, her stomach injured from years of pill taking, is now functioning daily since taking Syrup Pepsin; and Mr. David O'Connor of Canton, Ohio, suffering steadily for three years, got relief after a few doses. The list of successful users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is naturally large as over 10 million bottles are sold annually.

Formula on Every Package
Get yourself a bottle at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose. Take a spoonful at bedtime for a few nights and we guarantee that the most chronic constipation will be relieved, or refund your money. A few doses in succession soon train the stomach muscles to act for themselves. Many, however, take it once a week and in that way keep the bowels regularly open. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, unlike harsh physics such as calomel, "candy cathartics," salt waters and powders, is a simple vegetable laxative composed of Egyptian senna and pepsin with purely aromatics which are entirely harmless.

This Remedy Guaranteed

It has been accurately proven that a constipated person is only 75 per cent efficient. It allows you up, makes you dull and lazy. Take Syrup Pepsin the first day you do not have complete bowel movement. Take it, guaranteed, for constipation, torpid liver, dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, headache, lack of appetite. A spoonful at the first sign of ailment will kill a cold overnight. Half the ailments of winter start with constipation followed by a cold.

Demand for Coke of All Grades is Coming Close To the Vanishing Point

Less Surplus Spot Than Is Apparent From the Free Offerings.

CONSUMPTION DECREASES

In All Except Heating; Spot Furnace Quoted at $1.00; Foundries Buying Very Sparingly at $6.25-$6.75; Level Must Undergo Change Soon.

Special to The Weekly Courier, PITTSBURGH, Oct. 10.—Demand for coke has not improved a particle in the past week and if it has not decreased it is simply because it was so near the vanishing point already. The statement applies equally to heating coke, furnace coke and foundry coke. Coke for spot shipment is being offered freely in many quarters. Consumers seem to think there is an unlimited supply of it, whereas the appearance is distorted by the same coke being offered so many times. There may not be nearly as much surplus coke in the situation as would appear from the offerings.

There has been a further decrease in consumption of merchant coke of the Connellsville region in the past two or three weeks, but no large decrease. A few furnaces have gone out and none have gone in to help take up the slack, while it requires time to blow out ovens.

In heating coke there is of course no decrease in consumption, but buyers are indisposed to cover against future wants as they observe that the whole fuel situation is very easy. Anthracite production in the first nine months of this year was above normal, while there is no impediment to heavy production through the winter. Bituminous coal production is plainly excessive, as indicated by new low prices made in various districts.

In furnace coke there are numerous offerings at $1.00, quotable as the market a week ago. The freedom with which coke has been offered at this figure has led some buyers to think that on a firm bid much lower could be done, and even $3.75 is mentioned, but there is no trustworthy evidence that any such cut would be made from the price on really standard coke. On account of the low price of heating coke furnace coke that had to go for heating purposes would be at quite a discount and as there is such a liberal supply of good coke it does not require much to make a coke off in quality according to the present judgment of the consuming trade.

Reports are that heating coke might be bought in some cases at $1.00 to $2.25 but it is hardly thought that any considerable tonnage would be available at any such level. Even in heating coke there is close discrimination by buyers as to quality and accordingly there is likely to be quite a range in prices.

Foundries are buying coke very sparingly. Operations at many foundries have decreased and there does not seem to be much business ahead. This with current consumption lighter and with prospects uncertain the foundrymen are very conservative and are buying only from hand to mouth as actual necessity arises. Foundry coke is weaker, perhaps, but it does not seem to be quotably lower. The market stands quotable unchanged as follows:

Spot furnace $4.00
Contract furnace $4.25
Spot foundry $6.25-$6.75

It goes without saying that the furnace coke market cannot stay at its present level, well below the cost of production, unless there is a great decrease in costs. A little wage cutting has occurred at some nonunion coal mines outside the Connellsville region in the past week or two, leading some observers to think the same thing may occur in the region. The common opinion is that in the long run the coke industry will be worse off if it starts cutting wages. A recovery in coke prices, as soon as present surpluses are liquidated by ovens going out, is therefore predicted.

The Pittsburg district coal market has softened further, and steam miners in the district is generally going at less than $2.00, with $1.00 the top price on steam slack. Gas slack is $1.20 to $1.30. Steam lump from the Fairmont district has gone at the new low price of $1.85. Bituminous iron remains quotable at the recent decline or at $2.40, Valley, with no activity. Bessemer has not declined further. Foundry iron has declined 50 cents in the week but the new price is commanding some respect as there has been a little forward buying at it. Some producers claim pig iron prices are below the cost of production, but a difficulty in the market situation is that many of the little furnaces have stocks, and these furnaces think more of protective costs than of recent costs when it comes to naming prices. The market is quotable as follows:

Bessemer $25.00
Basic $21.00
Foundry $21.00-$24.50
Metallurgical $21.00-$24.50

Big Cut in Railroad Expenses.
The railroad of the United States have reduced their operating expenses approximately $1,000,000,000 a year, since government control ceased and only one-third of the cut resulted from decreased wages, Robert S. Blitzerhead, vice-chairman of the Public Relations committee of the Eastern railroads, told delegates at the recent convention of the Kiwanis Clubs of the Pennsylvania district.

GOV. SMITH HANDS SHARP REBUKE TO GOVERNOR PINCHOT

For Latter's Suggestion to Keep Close Watch on Coal Profiters.

PENNA. IS RESPONSIBLE

There seems to be a tone of reproach in the letter which Governor Smith of New York wrote a few days ago to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, in reply to the latter's communication addressed to the governors of some 30 anthracite consuming states. The Pennsylvania governor sought to pass the buck in the matter of price increases to his colleagues in the other states by telling them to keep a sharp watch for coal profiteers, says a Sawards Journal.

Governor Smith of New Jersey was prompt to disclaim any responsibility for the high prices of anthracite, and in told Mr. Pinchot that the other states considered Pennsylvania a bad neighbor for putting a production tax on this commodity.

"I have given careful consideration to your letter of September 10 relating to coal conditions, in which you express your concern for the protection of the consumer from undue and unnecessary increase in price. I think you are very properly that a special responsibility rests upon you in this matter as the governor of the only state which produces anthracite coal. You are in possession of first-hand information with regard to conditions at the mines. I am not, I assume that you know whereof you speak when you mention the need of a fairer wage in a peculiarly hazardous industry. I find no fault with your action in suggesting an increase of wages if in your opinion this was necessary."

"But I do not believe that any public official should lead the people to believe, or attempt to lead the people to believe, that the price of producing any commodity can be increased without increasing the cost to the ultimate consumer, unless profiteering can be proven. Have you any evidence of profiteering, so far as your state is concerned?"

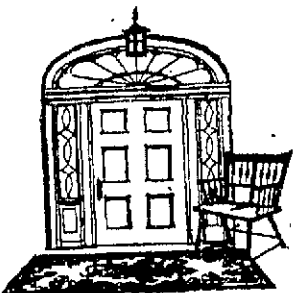

"In your letter to the President, a copy of which you enclosed to me, you state that 'many operators could absorb the whole of the 60-cent increase and still make abundant profit.' As these operators are wholly within the jurisdiction of your state, it would seem to me that in the discharge of the special responsibility which you shy upon you in the matter, some action should be taken by you and your state to see that the operators do not absorb this increase which you say they can absorb and thus do not pass it on to the consuming this increase in some way, by the action of the Public Service Commission of this state, entirely loses sight of the fact that no anthracite coal is produced in this state and no shipments of anthracite coal originate in this state. The freight rates of anthracite coal are all regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission so far as this state is concerned. "It is, of course, keeping in touch with coal conditions throughout New York state and will be glad to confer with you at any time. Thus far the state of Pennsylvania itself has added to the cost of coal to the consumers by the tax imposed at the mines and the addition of 50 cents a ton, imposed by the state of Pennsylvania upon production of anthracite coal. Now, the settlement of the coal strike giving a further increase of 60 cents a ton has made you assume the responsibility for these additions for the cost of coal to the consumer. "If you have any specific suggestions that I might submit to the Legislature of the State of New York, I shall be glad to hear it, but in the first instance it seems clear to me that the duty and responsibility rest upon you and the State of Pennsylvania."

Knitted Duds for All Sports Wear

Alluring Variety of Sweaters, Skirts and One-Piece Dresses.

Every girl who is interested at all in clothes knows the infinite variety of colored sweaters and knitted suits for every occasion, observes an authority on fashions in the New York Tribune. The slipover jumper in a plain color is worn with a skirt knitted in crosswise stripes in three-color combination, with the design repeated in the collar and cuffs of the jacket. These may be worn on almost every occasion that does not call for a special costume and are even being worn on the streets in town and by the girl who commutes from the country.

The varieties of the one-piece dress are infinite. They are usually knitted on the straight, simple lines so much in vogue at present, with the kimono sleeve. One of the newest and most interesting of these seen recently on the boardwalk at Atlantic City was of tan wool, with a brown leather belt at the waist and small squares of dark brown wool forming a conventional design on the blouse.

Whether or not it was the influence of the Russian drama craze of the past theatrical season is difficult to determine, but sports clothes reflect the interest in and admiration for the peasant embroidery of that country. Knitted sports jackets, those most useful and interesting garments, are seen with borders around the sleeves and bottom of peasant embroidery done in gay wools.

And these same embroideries of worsted yarn are used on many other garments. A sports dress of fine French crepe trimmed with bands of knitted wool in Roman stripes is one of the prettiest models of the season. Long capes and straight-line coats of knitted worsted have collars of fur. One of white is colored with dyed and is striking and handsome without being in the least an expensive garment. Dresses in Shetland shawl stitch are smart for country club wear.

There are knitted skirts to be worn for golf and tennis. These have gay borders, of conventional designs in contrasting shades and colors woven into them.

Sports clothes, like every other kind, do not how too closely to the line. They fill too important a position in a woman's wardrobe to be worn only by those who go in for sports, and in their general adoption by all kinds of women they have undergone many changes and adaptations.

Wicker Furniture May Be Made to Look New

Wicker furniture that has become badly soiled and otherwise the worse for wear, may be very much improved in appearance by staining the articles in a bright color. To begin with, they should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and very hot water. Scrub hard any parts that are especially soiled, then cover the articles, fastening all the pieces of wicker with strong glue. Ragged edges may be trimmed with scissors.

For staining, use the varnish dyes which are sold for treating hats. These give fine strong colors of almost any shade, and even the oldest piece of furniture will be transformed in appearance by this method. A better effect will be obtained by applying two coats of the stain, making sure that the first coat is quite dry before applying the second coat.

Crocheting, National Time-Killing Sport

A young and fairly intelligent married woman on a yacht cruise, was observed by a male stranger to be busy with a crochet needle and a big spool of heavy thread making little wheels, which were put together to make big wheels, which in turn were to be combined some day in the grand sum total of a marvelous white bedspread, made of millions of stitches.

"She sat, hour after hour, day after day, fingers sitting and eyes fixed on the work in her lap, oblivious to the beauty of the sky, water and forest. She had satted presumably for a long time, and she was not making much of these days," the explained proudly. "But I have done better than that. I have got the spread done in less than two years. I know a woman who was offered $1,000 for one."

She didn't need the $1,000, either. Her husband would have gladly given her that much to stop her eternal crocheting and take an interest in life. Not all women seem to be profiting by the new leisure they have won.—Norfolk News.

Sleeves and Necks and Effect of Cooler Days

Only a hint of cold weather was needed to send arms under cover so fast as women are concerned. Sleeves have appeared as if by magic, and even when short sleeves or sleeveless frocks were worn, arms that have been bare all summer are covered by gloves. Some compromised by the addition of little double puffs, two cuffs to each arm, attached at the shoulders. These are of plaited gauze and come midway to the elbow. Sleeves on afternoon gowns in most instances are long and tight, coming well over the hand as the Paris mode prescribes. Neck lines, however, continue to follow the canoe type with open gunwales—that is, the hem stands well away from the neck and shoulders. Sometimes a standing collar is a feature.

Green and Yellow Combine Well. The combination of yellow and green is not at all unusual. Some imported sweaters were recently seen combined these two colors with great success. A green silk knitted costume embroidered in Chinese effect with yellow was seen also, and reversing the order, a sweater embroidered in green.

Shoes and Stockings Need Reasonable Care

Nobody can hope to look well dressed every day of the week unless she takes reasonable care of her shoes and stockings. The A. I. C. in the care of shoes, says the Lady's Companion, is to keep them well cleaned, well stretched and well soled and heeled. Yet even these simple little niceties are sometimes neglected by girls who spend quite a lot of time on their appearance.

Have a pair of shoes for every pair of shoes you possess and slip them in whenever you take the shoes off. Very expensive shoes are not necessary, but a good supply of ordinary ones is really essential to the well-being of your feet.

When shoes get very muddy, wipe off the mud while it is wet, put the shoes on trees to dry and clean and polish them next day. This is a far better plan than letting the mud dry on the leather.

Suede shoes, of course, need more careful cleaning than leather ones. A stout wire brush, used every day, will do a lot to keep them nice, and cloth-balls, of the correct shade, should be lightly applied every third day or so. Shoe leathers especially silk ones, should be renewed frequently. It's wonderful how a new pair will smarten up oldish shoes and vice versa.

Stockings should be either a perfect match or a pleasant contrast to your shoes. As with gloves, a few good pairs at a time are better than a large and motley collection. Very cheap silk stockings are never an economy, whereas one or two good silk pairs, to match dainty shoes, most certainly are.

Silk stockings, more than any others, need careful and immediate drying and constant washing through warm water. Ribbed and striped stockings may be kept absolutely "on the straight," if garters are worn below the knee, in addition to suspenders.

Find Silk Negligee Simple, Easy to Make

Every woman should have a silk negligee adapted to her personality. They are simple and easy to make. A plain one-piece pattern is used to cut it out. After that everything depends on the application of trimming at the right places. A wide, flowered satin ribbon may be draped over the left shoulder, coming to a low waistline on the right side and tying into a huge bow. If the material of the kimono is a coral silk the ribbon should have the coral color as a background, but could also show tones of blue, green and gold. A hertha made of the wide soft satin ribbon would be equally effective, especially if decorated at the opening with a few colorful ribbon flowers. A panel of wide soft ribbon may reach from the shoulder to the floor the last foot lying on the floor and ending in a heavy gold tassel.

White satin, decorated with ermine or rhinestones, is the most popular combination for the formal evening gown at the present time.

This is a very smart top coat for fall. It is of brown and green plaid, collared with red fox, which matches well with a hat of brown felt, trimmed with a cascade of gold cloth.

Why Miners Take Tools Home When Out on a Strike

Many people outside the anthracite region—and some in—wondered when reading reports of the recent strike why miners took their tools home with them when they quit work, as it seemed probable that an agreement would be reached within a short time and they would only have to carry home all supplies to have on hand for their own use when a suspension is called for. But they can't pay their pay that much. Hence the

A TRIO OF SMART WINTER MODES

These three models show the trend of the 1924 fashions. To the left, a dress of Poirer twill is trimmed with bands of two-inch faille ribbon edged with pleated ruffles of narrow satin ribbon, while the slipper is modishly decorated with ribbon pompons. The charmer gown in the center is trimmed with novelty ribbon, applied in parallel rows on sleeves and foundation skirt. The edging of fur in combination with ribbon trimming will be seen on many smart modes this season. To the right a coat dress of duvetyne has the unique feature of a large draped sash trimmed with parallel rows of novelty ribbon.

New Fall Hats Are of Felt and Suede

Upward Rolling Brim One of the Newest; Tams for Young Girls.

The fall line of hats is divided among sueds, taffetas and felts. Combinations of sueds and taffetas are shown and while a large number of these models is made up in red, two shapes predominate in the sueds and taffetas and combination models. The brimmed hats nearly all show an upward roll from the face, and there are chic little turbans with a wing of taffeta or sueds, darting from one side with a downward bend.

Many of the fall taffeta hats have the roll brim closely stirred, the shirring put in with a pleated stitch. In most cases the under side of the brim is of a different shade from the top and the crown. Some of the loveliest of these hats have the upper side closely covered with varicolored embroidery.

The felt hats are all of the cloche shape and extremely small and close-fitting. Most of these are trimmed with kid, forming narrow bands and cockades.

With the hats are a number of matching scarfs and bags of sueds and taffetas. The young girl will glory in the new tam. In fact, adaptations of tams have arrived from Paris so smart and so different that even the more mature members of the feminine sex will be seen wearing them. They are made of velvet, plush and broadened ribbons. Those made of the velvet are intricately embroidered with narrow satin, green and more ribbons. Some of the new tams made of faille ribbons are richly embroidered with vivid shades of velvet ribbons. Some have gone to the extent of adding a touch of beads to the ribbon embroidery, to add to the elaborateness of the effect.

Some of the tams have a little sunburst about the face entirely covered with tiny ribbon loops, narrow velvet ribbons and shaded metallic ribbons being especially favored for the purpose. While the tams of the ribbon cockade are exceedingly popular, giving a colorful and flower-like effect to the hat which makes it becoming to almost any face.

They are good with the more severe style of top coat, with the short fur jacket, with the one-piece dress, with the coat frock and with the tailored suit, leaving but little more that can be considered a part of the modern girl's wardrobe for everyday wear just now.

Trimnings at the sides of all these hats are notable and most effective when it comes to telling the tale of modern styles. Sometimes they are straight and stiff and applied to one side only. At other times they are softer and are placed on either side in exactly opposite positions. Again they are loose and flowing and graceful, being applied to one side only and allowed to droop or flow over the neck and shoulders with a graceful framing for the face which makes them most attractive.

Ribbon Powder Cases Made in All Colors

As long as women powder their noses—and who among us cares to look upon them after they cease doing it?—they will carry powder cases, and it goes without saying that as long as they carry them they will continue to make them of ribbon. One of the very latest models is fashioned in the shape of a square envelope with the flap curiously adorned with rows of gold-colored sealing wax and tiny ribbon rosettes in contrasting colors. These cases are made up in all colors, so that one has no difficulty in matching one's frock. Emerald green, coral and peacock blue are among the favored colors.

With Black Gowns. Bright shoes are being worn, not so much with white as with black costumes. A thin black dress is affected by chic women for afternoon, tea or informal dinner, and the bright shoes have their color repeated in a necklace or three or four bead bracelets.

Sable Neckpiece With Hat of Black Beaver

The sable neckpiece is very appropriate when worn with a smart hat of black beaver. The model is trimmed with Japanese algotte.

May Use Lace Scarf for Picturesque Touch

Silver cloth tinted with an apricot shade is used for a model featuring a trailing chiffon scarf. The foundation, which is long and slim, has a deep scalloped hem and a low-bounding waistline accentuated by a thickly padded girdle of fruits made of green and yellow silk. The scarf is hand-drawn in colors to match the girdle and covers the entire back of the bodice as well as the arms, the ends trailing on the ground at the front.

These scarfs are particularly effective when made of metallic lace or of lace dyed in a color to match the foundation. The use of lace lends a picturesque touch to the bodice gown, and designers have been quick to take advantage of this. Aside from the scarf, lace may be introduced in a jacket, sleeves, cuffs or gilet panels.

Black Organdis. Black organdis is seen infrequently enough to have the charm of novelty when it does appear. Frequently it is combined with silver cloth or a colorful lining, and brightened up with gay embroidery.

This One-Piece Dress Is in Milady's Favor

Showing a very beautiful, tailored one-piece dress—attached in black and having a very smart collar and cuffs of white broadcloth—bound in black. The hat is of blue velvet ribbons, and the scarf of natural blue fox.

Fall Millinery Takes on Egyptian Touches

Two distinct tendencies are seeking supremacy in the fall millinery styles that are selling. Stocks of materials that were bought for early consumption by the chapeau makers, according to the latest millinery bulletin, lean to the Egyptian schemes, including the blues, but later developments in the style centers are preferable to those of Chinese and Japanese inspiration. Turquoise blue is said to be selling well at present, and a big season is expected of navy. The shades of red that are selling well to burgundy—the garnet tones, lacquer red and similar "off shades" rather than the pure bright red that has occupied so much attention during the season.

Bottle green is already becoming popular, and there is an increasing demand for stocks of this color as decreed by the leading couturiers of Paris. The grayish sage green is also selling and the two combined give an interesting and soothing effect. Gray alone will sell well this winter, it is thought, but beige is falling off a bit in favor of the new shades that Paris has sponsored.

The oriental colors of red turquoise and dark green require touches to blend the tones of the Far Eastern trappings, and of tinsel and metallic tones there is a large variety. The season is beginning with them, and that in itself is rare. In materials alone, novelties seldom start the season selling, and this is particularly so in colors—but metal in cloth, embroidery or ribbon is the talk of the trade. A touch of entire elegance of it is de rigueur with the wholesale, retail and consuming factors of millinery fashions.

Circular Panels and Flourishes Brought Out

So anxious have the French designers been to avoid mistakes and to please fastidious Americans that many of them have settled on a compromise in design. This they have effected by giving straight lines a circular treatment.

This may sound incongruous, but there is truth in the statement that nothing is impossible to a French dressmaker. It has been accomplished by the use of circular panels and flourishes on straight-line fall frocks. Circular bands and loops without number are employed and the skirts are often gathered or given a circular effect by a slash at the front or one side. Similar decorations are given below a straight-line bodice by wrapped skirts and the apron at front, back or sides is frequently utilized in a similar manner. Circular insets of fur and over-tunics offer opportunities for like effects.

Length is likewise compromised by uneven hem lines, longer at back than front or trailing at the sides. Here, too, the over-present apron comes into play. Skirts for daytime dresses are generally of moderate length, however.

Ostrich Trimmings on Gowns and Accessories

Ostrich feather trimmings are seen on the new evening dresses and all sorts of accessories to the evening toilette feature these plumes, observes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. A very simple frock of silk may be made quite effective by the addition of a feather motif.

Among the recent importations from Paris is a model of dull green crepe made of straight lines. The back of the bodice is cut very low and the skirt is subtly draped to one side. A decorative panel made of olive cord suspending three large ostrich motifs forms the only trimming.

A frock for a young girl is of lemon yellow silk and has a large motif of golden brown feathers at the waistline. The necklines of evening dresses for the June file are sometimes outlined with a narrow feather banding in a color to match the frock. Frequently a headband to correspond with the trimming on the dress is worn.

Young girls in Paris are affecting small muffs of ostrich in the evening. These, while in a color to match the dress, are lined from light to dark shades. They are particularly attractive when carried with frocks of the wide-skirted variety.

EXPLORERS HUNT FOR PINK DUCK

Expedition to Make Another Trip to India.

GET VALUABLE SPECIMENS

"The pink-headed duck of Nepal is probably extinct," said Arthur S. Vernay, one of the principals of the Vernay-Fauntleroy Indian expedition, in an interview at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central park West, New York. Although the expedition failed to obtain specimens of this rare bird, it presented the museum with an absolutely unique collection of groups of the great mammals of the Indian plains, and plans another trip to secure specimens of the Schomburgk deer of Burma, a creature that has never been seen by white men.

The Vernay-Fauntleroy expedition recently completed a six months' visit in Oudh, Nepal, Mysore and Burma. The expedition was financed entirely by Mr. Vernay as an individual British tribute to American participation in the World war. The other principal, Lieut. Col. J. O. Fauntleroy, is aide-camp to King George and British commissioner to Lucknow. Mr. Vernay is well known in New York as an art connoisseur, big game hunter, and is also engaged in the export business at 12 East Forty-first street. The party received invaluable co-operation from Lord Reading, viceroy of India, the Maharajah of Nepal and other native princes, and Sir Harcourt Butler, British governor general of Burma.

Secure Big Collection. The result of the first hunt is a magnificent collection of groups, male, female and young, of the tiger, leopard, elephant, one-horned Indian rhinoceros, nilghai, swamdeer, sambar (a kind of bison), birds, particularly hornbills and reptiles. There is a total of 450 specimens of all species, including 250 birds, 110 mammals, 30 snakes, as well as other reptiles, scorpions and a number of insects. The expedition left New York on November 1, 1922. It lasted 135 days, and covered 10,800 miles by rail, 570 by motor, 350 on elephant back, 850 on foot, with short distances by bullock-cart, camel and mule. A taxidermist, a naturalist, a geologist and a photographer accompanied the party. The latter was Lieut. Commander D. M. Dyer, famous for his war photography in the British navy. His work is represented by a magnificent collection of 1,000 still photographs and 20,000 feet of film. These have been presented to the museum with the specimens. The film will be exhibited for the benefit of the New York board of education. It includes 51 seconds of film of the great one-horned Indian rhinoceros, a tiger charging an elephant and other spectacular scenes.

There was no unnecessary killing, said Mr. Vernay, and no wounded animals were allowed to escape. They killed three elephants, including a fifteen-year-old tusker of unusual size, standing nine and a half feet at the shoulder. These were shot in Mysore and 100 caribou were needed to carry the skulls and skeletons to the rail head. Lord Reading expressed great interest in the tiger group and asked that it be presented to the museum in his own name. The rhinoceros were obtained only through the courtesy of the Maharajah of Nepal, in whose kingdom only, it is found. It is becoming extinct, as its flesh and blood are thought to possess medicinal qualities by the natives, although to kill it implies a 2,000 rupee fine for the first offense and capital punishment for the second. The Maharajah co-operated in violating his own laws, providing elephants and 100 caribou. Three specimens were obtained.

"Ringing Tigers." The methods by which the party got specimens of tigers is known as "ringing tigers." This sport required 38 elephants, six guns and 618 men. A buffalo was left as bait in the jungle. The tiger killed the beast and gorged on the meat, afterward sleeping until next evening. Hunters found the tiger and a narrow ring of elephants surrounded the lair and closed in on the beast. When the ring was about 100 yards in diameter a big tusker was sent in to drive out the tiger. The tiger, on emerging, would make a jump and try to climb on an elephant's head. "It is very important," explained Mr. Vernay, "to shoot the tiger before this can happen." Five tigers were caught. The tiger, a kind of wild lion, is, according to Mr. Vernay, exceedingly wary, runs on wild shrubs and other tropical vegetation, and lies down watching its own track for signs of a pursuer. It would sit and circle upwind, track down and attack its prey. Mr. Vernay will return for a further four months' hunt in Burma and Siam, in the hope of procuring specimens of the Schomburgk deer and of the giant Siamese tortoise.

Judge Fines Self a Dollar. Judge John Connelley of Duquesne, Pa., fined himself $1 for parking his automobile without lights. The car was tagged by a policeman. The court dismissed three other motorists who faced similar charges.

Exciting Their Curiosity. "I know someone I don't gonna tell." Thus sang a little spittle on the sidewalk. "Select to that line, kid," counseled the sage of Sage Center, "and you'll always have people running after you."

Enterprise. "Is bootleg liquor expensive around here?" "It is in (Yonkers) Glitch," replied Quaker Joe. "But I understand up to Snake Ridge Road's an undertaker willing to treat all comers as to bootleg business."—Washington Star

Yankees Even Series With Giants When Ruth Connects For Two Homers; Score, 4-2

Bambino, Performing at Plate, Gives Pennock Safe Lead Over Champs.

FOUR HOME RUNS IN GAME

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Babe Ruth, the world famous "King of the Swat," yesterday defeated the world series champion Giants in the first of the series. It was the first victory of the Yankees over their National League rivals in 10 starts. Playing like real champs, the Yanks could not be stopped and rightly deserved the victory.

Babe Ruth had two home runs to his credit, one coming in the fourth and another in the fifth. Every attempt of the Giants to even the count was choked off by the Yankee fielders.

The game in detail follows:

First Inning.
Yankees—Witt up. Strike one. Ball one. Ball two. Frisch tossed out Witt.

Dugan up. Ball one. Ball two. Ball three. Dugan walked on four straight balls.

Ruth up. Ball one. Ball two. Strike one. Ball three. Ruth walked, and the crowd howled.

Musiel up. Strike one. Ball one. Musiel hit into a double play, Bancroft to Frisch to Kelly.

No runs. No hits. No errors.
Giants—Bancroft up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Foul. Scott threw out Bancroft.

Grob up. Strike one. Ball one. Pennock took Grob's splash and threw him out.

Frisch up. Ward robbed Frisch of a hit with a one-hand stop and a quick throw to first.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Second Inning.
Yankees—Pipp up. Ball one. Strike one. Grob threw out Pipp, making a nice play of Pipp's hot grounder.

Ward up. Foul, strike one. Foul. Strike two. Ball one. Ward hit a home run into the upper left field stand.

Schlag up. Schlag lifted out to Snyder.

Scott up. Strike one. Scott flied out to Musiel.

One run. One hit. No errors.
Giants—Young up. Strike one. Young popped to Dugan.

Musiel up. Strike one. Ball one. Musiel hit a home run into the left field stand tying the count.

Cunningham up. Strike one. Foul. Strike two. Foul. Cunningham flied out to Ruth.

Kelly up. Kelly singled into right. Snyder up. Snyder sent up a high fly to Ward.

One run. Two hits. No errors.

Third Inning.
Yankees—Pennock up. Ball one. Strike one. Frisch tossed out Pennock.

Witt up. Strike one. Frisch also got Witt at first.

Dugan up. Dugan flied out to Musiel.

No runs. No hits. No errors.
Giants—McQuillan up. Strike one. Dugan made a wonderful play on McQuillan's roller and threw him out.

Bancroft up. Ball one. Strike one. Strike two. Foul. Ball two. Bancroft flied to Musiel.

Grob up. Ball one. Ball two. Ball three. Strike one. Strike two. Grob got a base on balls.

Frisch up. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Ball one. Frisch singled into center field, Grob holding second.

Young up. Ball one. Foul, strike one. Young lined out to Ruth.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Fourth Inning.
Yankees—Ruth up. Ball one. Strike one. Ball two. Ruth got a home run over the right field stand.

Musiel up. Foul, strike one. Strike two. Musiel fanned.

Pipp up. Pipp singled into right.

Ward up. Ball one. Strike one. Ball two. Foul, strike two. Ward popped to Kelly.

Schlag up. Schlag shot a hot single into right, Pipp going to third.

Young juggled the ball and got an error on the play.

Scott up. Ball one. Ball two. Strike one. Pipp scored. Scott's single to center, Schlag going to second.

McQuillan was knocked out of the box at this stage and Bentley went in.

Pennock was hit by a pitched ball. He fell to the ground, his face was contorted with pain and the players of both clubs gathered around him. The crowd cheered when he arose to his feet and limped to first base. The buster were wild.

Witt up. Strike one. Ball one. Witt flied out to Cunningham.

Two runs. Four hits. One error.
Giants—Musiell up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Ward threw out Musiel.

Cunningham up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Ward threw out Cunningham.

Cunningham up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Foul. Foul. Cunningham flied out to Ruth.

Kelly up. Strike one. Ball one. Strike two. Kelly walked.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

RULE AGAINST OUTSIDE KICK HELPS FOOTBALL

Should Have Tendency to Make Game Much Stronger.

Elimination of the outside kick after the ball has been booted past the scrimmage line should have a tendency to make defensive football stronger, with the consequent result more stress must be placed upon the development of powerful offensive formations, writes Walter Eckersall in the Chicago Tribune.

Tears ago the outside kick was considered one of the most dangerous weapons in football. With the coming of the forward pass back in 1900 the play was discarded until Robert Zuppke pulled it out of his chest of formations a few years ago. Since that time practically every team in the country has attempted to execute it, with the result the defense had to be on the alert every time a punter assumed the kicker's position.

In the course of hard-fought games defending players would shoot outside kick, with the result players of the kicking team who were thought to be outside had to be covered. This weakened the defense to a perceptible degree, because as many as three defending warriors covered the supposedly outside player.

When the outside kick was in effect it placed a great burden of responsibility on the defense to back up or any other player delegated to catch punts. The punt catcher always had to make sure of the catch, no matter where the ball was booted, and he was always in deadly fear of the outside player heading him to the ball.

Doing away with this dangerous football weapon will eliminate to a certain degree the large number of fair catches. When the outside kick was in effect, coaches instructed their players to make fair catches whenever in doubt of catching the ball. Catchers of this sort have been made in all parts of the field and at times when runs could have been made after the catch.

However, the fact must not be lost sight of that an outside kick still can be executed from scrimmage. Section 3 of rule 18 defines the play thoroughly in that it states the kicker himself, or any other player who was behind him when the ball was kicked, may, however, recover a kicked ball which has not crossed the line of scrimmage. It will be readily seen that formations can be evolved which will call for a kick to either side of the field with an interference restraining defending players from getting at the ball, while the outside warriors can be placed in positions where they can reach the ball quickly and before it crosses the scrimmage line.

In this connection it should be stated that on a kickoff or free kick after fair catch players of the kicking team are onside and can recover the ball, providing it is kicked ten yards before touching an opponent.

The outside kick after a fair catch has many possibilities, any of which may be sprung during the course of a hard-fought struggle.

Sisler Finds Golf Ball

Much Easier to Smash

Is it more difficult to hit a stationary golf ball than a baseball whizzing through the air with terrific speed?

George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns is convinced that it is much easier to hit a golf ball than a baseball. During the summer Sisler, who has been unable to play baseball because of eye trouble, has indulged in a lot of golf. He plays an excellent game and is a long driver.

Sisler hopes that his eyes will be so improved during the winter that he will be back in action next spring.

Cokers Meet Johnstown Hi Here Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon the Connellsville High school football team will meet its ancient rivals, the Johnstown High School eleven, at Fayette Field. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

The Cokers have been primed for the coming battle and with the prospect of a possible victory in sight the team will go to work with a vim not heretofore displayed this season. The squad has been working out steadily during the past week and it seems to be growing larger now instead of diminishing as it did for a time.

Angle, Hillard and several others, who had dropped out for a time, have returned. Both these lads have ability if they desire to use it. Each is a backfield candidate and on a team where there is so much competition for a job back of the line there is every incentive for a lad to give his best in him.

Reports from the Flood City are that the Johnstons are being driven hard in preparation for tomorrow's clash and the team will not be so long as it was during the past two weeks.

Johnstown, it is reported, has what

Is probably the biggest team in its history but coordination is lacking. Two years ago the Johnstons had a big team here and ran rough-shod over the Cokers. This year, reports from that place state, the team is as heavy, if not heavier. Why the outfit has not become a dangerous factor on the gridiron cannot be explained. From end to end and in the backfield also, the players are big, but the punch is missing.

Tornadoes Play Monessen Sunday At New Gridiron

The Connellsville Elks Tornadoes have another game scheduled for Sunday. The team this week-end will play Monessen Independents at the field just beyond the city limits - on Limestone Hill.

The Tornadoes are reported to have been strengthened by the addition of Weshacher of Greensburg.

HOW COFFEE TREES GROW

Berry or Bean Is Really the Seed—Neither Rat Fruit Which Looks Like Cherries.

Coffee usually is spoken of as a berry or bean, but that part of the coffee tree that we use is really the seed. The tree grows naturally to a height of from 20 to 30 feet, but this growth is checked by the grower, who keeps the tree as low as five feet. The cutting does not injure the tree and it is far more convenient to get the fruit.

The coffee tree begins to bear when it is about three years old and it continues for about twenty years. The singular fact about it being often noticeable that the fresh blossoms and the ripened fruit will appear on the same tree at the same time.

The fruit of the coffee tree is round and red and looks like our cherries and, being sweet to the taste, is eaten by the natives as we eat cherries. Each berry contains two seeds, the beans with which we are familiar, enclosed in a skin, with their flat sides together. The meat of the fruit is whitish and when the fruit is eaten and it is dried so that the seeds may be easily removed.

Now coffee first came to be used as a drink is not known, but it has been so used for at least a thousand years in Persia. It was introduced in Europe about three hundred years ago.

HIS NEW NAME FOR AMERICA

Spanish Writer Declares That This Continent Should Be Called "Beatrice."

Many historians have felt it unjust that America be named after Christopher Columbus, who was probably more familiar with the land and its people than the man who gave it its name. But as a matter of fact, America ought to have been called Beatrice, says Francisco Geronimo in El Sol (Madrid). For Don Cristobal (Columbus) was the reason why the impulsive and impatient navigator named himself to the delays that he met his expedition, and did not hurry off to more promising prospects in other countries. The discovery of Beatrice preceded the discovery of America. In even the greatest enterprises the French proverb "Patience is Victory" is true.

Failure of Zionist Movement Deplored By Israel Zangwill In Message To American Jews

NEW YORK.—The spread of anti-Semitism in this country and Europe, and the failure of the Zionist movement will be the burden of a message brought to American Jews by Israel Zangwill, famous Jewish author and playwright, through an address before the American Jewish Congress to open here October 14. Describing himself as "the only Zionist left in the world," the playwright deplored the recent violent outbreaks of racial hatred in middle Europe, and urged nationalization of the Jewish people as the only remedy. The famous author of the "Melmoth Poet" is making his first visit to the United States since 1908.

COAST GUARDS OF ENGLAND

More Than a Thousand Lighthouses and Lightships Under Control of Trinity House.

More than a thousand lighthouses and lightships guard the coasts of the British Isles, and all are under the control, direct or indirect, of Trinity House. For the purpose of control the coast is divided into districts, of which the London district is the most important. It extends from Southwell in Suffolk to the North Foreland in Kent.

The lighthouses for this district are kept at Trinity wharf, at Blackwell, and here are to be seen crabs of oil, an enormous mooring chain, complete lantern and machinery of many sorts, as well as quantities of buoys of different sizes and shapes and colors.

The authors used for mooring lightships are huge implements of iron shaped like great umbrellas and as for the mooring chains, these are tested by hydraulic power up to 800 tons. Can buoys, spherical buoys, wreck buoys, bell and gas buoys are here by the score. Some are new, others are old and battered, and have been brought in for painting and repair.

Painting buoys goes on all the year round, and the work is done by the men who are ashore from lightships or lighthouses. Life on a lightship is no joke, especially in bad weather, and each man after two months' stint gets a month ashore.

Since accidents sometimes happen to lightships, a relief ship is always kept moored at the wharf ready to start at a moment's notice to replace any vessel which has drifted from her moorings or been sunk in collision. London Tri-Bits.

TELLS HOW HE STOLE MELON

Speaker on Honesty Says a Queer Shiver Ran Up His Spine and He Put Fruit Back.

Mr. Monaghan, the English professor, has just bought the largest house in the country town, and so he was recognized as the unofficial squire of the place.

He was in great demand as a speaker at all the local functions, and that is how he came to be on the platform at the annual prize-giving due to give an address on "Honesty."

When his turn came to speak he related how when quite a boy, he saw a cart of melons outside a shop and nobody in sight.

"On the spur of the moment," he said impressively—"on the spur of the moment, I say, I took one of these melons."

He paused for effect, and was not disappointed. The whole audience gave one snap at the idea of their local bigwig doing such a thing. "But," he went on, "instantly a queer sensation assailed me and a shiver went through me. I made up my mind, and I went back to the cart and replaced the melon—(loud applause)—and took a ripper one!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Scientific View of Earth.

A French scientist finds in the great depths of the Arctic ocean an argument tending to show that the earth is slightly top-shaped, the protuberance corresponding to the point of the top being at the south pole. This, he thinks, would explain the different results arrived at by the various measurements of astronomers and geodesists.

The differences are very small in comparison with the entire bulk of the globe, yet they are readily appreciable, and one of the explanations that has been suggested for them is that the earth is tetrahedral in form. But the Frenchman thinks the top-shaped theory is preferable. The fact that to an eye looking at the earth from a point in space it would not sensibly differ in appearance from a true sphere shows how refined are the methods of science which enable men living on the surface of the globe to detect variations in its general contour.—New York Sun.

Ancient Egypt Had Wheels.

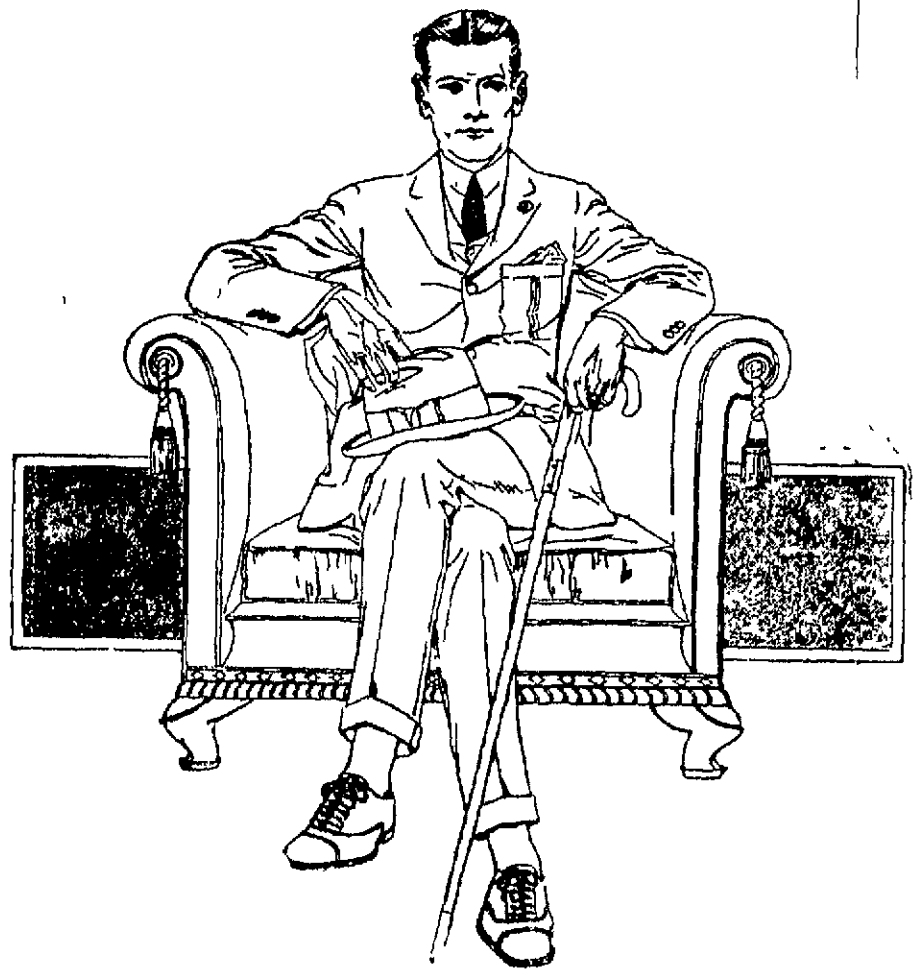

The wheel was old when Egypt was still a new nation, and of its actual origin there is no authentic record. One theory goes back to the distant period of cave-dwelling man, whose chief occupation lay in building. Prehistoric man dragged logs of timber from the forests day after day and piled them at an angle against the rocks filling in the cracks with earth and rubble thus affording himself shelter. It is thought that by using semicircular branches as runners underneath the logs it was found that they could be moved forward far more easily than by just lifting the dead weight.—Detroit News.

Delicate Job of Measuring.

A matter which has been puzzling scientists since the day of Ben Franklin and before is the amount and character of the electric current across the surface of the earth. The Carnegie Institute for scientific investigation has crisscrossed over a large portion of the Atlantic ocean and measured or computed the magnetic force around several of the ocean paths. Reports of measurements around the entire United States show that a current of positive electricity of about 1.00 of an ampere per square kilometer was found to be flowing upward.

Cunningham Missionary Properties in Tokio Escape Destruction

conditions are better now. All along the way food was distributed and here they made a point of getting milk to the babies.

"All houses in Tokio are commandeered for use for refugees. Our chapel at Yotsuya and the front porch are being used but because of the frequent earthquake shocks the people, whose nerves are already on edge, could not be persuaded to go into the house which is two stories high. (The house is frame.) The chapel, being one story and having windows from which they can jump, is being well used. The school for foreign children is badly damaged and they are now planning to open schools here for six weeks. After that it will be too cold, as there is no way to heat the buildings in this summer colony. So much for Tokio.

"After three days rumors began coming in about devastation in Yokohama. There the destruction was complete. The shocks were much heavier than in Tokio and the first two laid the city low, and fire did the rest. This city of 200,000 is entirely destroyed. A Y. M. C. A. man who lost all was down and when he returned he reported everything. The entire city—wharves, warehouses, stores and dwellings—was entirely wiped out. Only two buildings were left standing and these were gutted by fire.

"One bank, the Yokohama Specie, was supposed to be safe and opened its doors to the survivors of floating population. This building was afterward surrounded by fire and all in it perished. A big trans-Pacific steamer was just ready to leave when the shock came and great crowds were on the wharf. The wharf went down and they were thrown into the sea. There were 15 large steamers in the bay at the time of the disaster and they did wonderful work of rescue.

"Thousands of refugees were taken by the steamers to Kobe and thus their lives were saved. About 85 foreigners were killed in Yokohama. We had several friends among them. As this was the city on which we depended for our groceries and dry-goods all these supplies will be cut off for the time. We have already sent to America for groceries. Of course we could subsist on Japanese food and we do in the way of them, but here are many necessities for us that they do not have.

"All newspaper and printing establishments in both cities are gone or I'd send you newspapers. All countries are responding to calls for help most generously. This being turned over to Japanese relief societies. The Ephraimians were the heaviest losers among the missionaries. They lost a large hospital and only ten men, the hospital and other relief and medical supplies. The hospital was a great one, perhaps the largest in the city. PAID HIGH FOR A CHICKEN

Man Choo Hwa, 322 by Kinross and Jackson, Oct. 11, 1934.

Master D. Walker of Kansas City, Mo., always has been fond of chickens. But, before a turkey was a turkey, it was a chicken. He had a hen for just last year, and it was a good one. He paid $1.00 for it, but it was worth it. He paid $1.00 for it, but it was worth it. He paid $1.00 for it, but it was worth it.

It happened this way: With his wife, Walker drove to a farm on the Kearney road, north of North Kansas City, and bought a fry. Returning home, he discovered he had given $20 for the chicken by mistake. Walker started in his car with his wife back to the farm after his change. He didn't in the least mind the long trip.

Five miles north of North Kansas City a man met Walker's car. The stranger took $15 from Walker and a diamond ring valued at $400 from Mrs. Walker.

"I made a bad deal when I bought that chicken," said Walker. He returned without completing his journey to Kansas City.

Star Four Years Away.

If the light of all the stars were to go out at once, it would be at least four years before we noticed any difference in their light. After that time these lights in the sky would disappear one by one, according to their distance from the earth. No one living today would see the last starlight go out if all their lights were extinguished at once. The nearest star takes four and one-half years for its light to "come to us." We say a star is so many "light years" away, basing its distance on the time it takes its light to reach us. It takes light 100,000 years and more to reach us from some of the farther stars. From some of the more distant stars we are just now receiving the light that originally emanated from them many years back in the Stone Age—before history. It has taken it all these years to reach us.

The Thrifty Partners.

Two Aberdonians, who were keen business men, started on their own account, and it was part of the partnership agreement that one of them should do the canvassing for orders in the forenoon, and the other in the afternoon. A customer of the firm entered, and knowing this arrangement, remarked: "You're late today in going out, Mr. McGregor."

"Yes, you see it's a 'Tag day' in the town today, and I am waiting on my partner returning with his tag. No use of two of us buying the same commodity."

BIG TASK TO GATHER HONEY

Busy Bees Travel Many Miles in Search of Fields of Clover.

To turn out one pound of honey it is estimated that honey bees must have taken the nectar from more than 65,000 clover blossoms, and that to accomplish this there would be required some 2,700,000 visits to the blossoms by the bees.

When one considers the distance honey bees sometimes traverse in search of clover fields, in some cases a mile or two from the hive, one begins to obtain an idea, in a slight degree, of the number of miles the industrious little creatures must travel in order that man may possess a pound of honey.—Washington Star.

Real Pleasure Not Harmful.

The practice of cohabitation, though not the elimination of all pleasure, is a world in itself. It is a world in which one must forego all pleasures in order to go ahead. However, to those who have their own best interests at heart there can be no genuine pleasure in any practice that is harmful.

It is a pleasure to perform our duty, but it is a pleasure to perform our duty. It is a pleasure to perform our duty, but it is a pleasure to perform our duty. It is a pleasure to perform our duty, but it is a pleasure to perform our duty.

To make progress in life, one must be willing to forego all pleasures in order to go ahead. However, to those who have their own best interests at heart there can be no genuine pleasure in any practice that is harmful.

Napoleon Was Fond of Solitaire.

Napoleon had a hobby. This was no less than the game of solitaire. When great events happened he would spend hours watching the cards, according to some of those who were close to him.

There is a story that on the night before the crossing of Brestina he sat up all night in a futile effort to win the fifty-two points. When he could not prevail over the bits of parchment he tore them up and ordered the advance.—Detroit News.

Soviet Illusions.

They are telling in Moscow a good story of a professor who sat in the best restaurant gazing away regardless of expense. "How can you gorge yourself like that?" asked a friend, when so many millions are starving on the Volga?

The professor took his knife from his mouth. "Steady on," he protested. "You know what Soviet millions are."—London Daily Express.

Low.

"Don't you love to hear the cattle low?" asked the poet.

"I love to hear 'em that way," said the packman.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mysteries of Credit.

A man whose credit is a. g. is sure to pine and fret; with too much credit, soon he'll be in grief because of debt.

Long Skirts.

"I hope the women won't let their skirts mop the sidewalks."

"Sally! Don't irritate 'em. First thing we know every wife will wear a street train, and every husband will have to quit work to carry it."

Tough Luck.

Mrs. Hobbs—Yes, I understand she can't even talk about the neighbors next door.

Mrs. Johns—It's strange, but she's even satisfied with the way they bring up their children.

At the Antiquarian's.

"Customer—What? One thousand dollars for this chair? Last time I asked the price it was only $500."

Shopkeeper—That's true, sir; but remember labor and material have gone up a great deal since then.

MYSTERY OF THE JUNGLE

Elephants Have Secret Graveyard in Africa—Fortune Awaits Man Who Discovers It.

The statement has been made many times that no white man ever has seen the body of an elephant that died from natural causes either in Africa or India, and where they go when they feel the summons is one of the secrets hidden from the most persistent students of natural history.

One of the stories on that subject is that there is a secret graveyard in the mountains in the interior of Africa, entrance to which the elephants solemnly journey to find their tomb, and various stories have been told of the millions of value in ivory there if you forego the usual route but find the elephant sleeping grounds.—Ohio State Journal.

THREE MEN AND A MAID

by P.G. Wodehouse

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

Copyright, by George H. Doran Co.

"Get out and crank her," Broom emerged for an instant from his trance.

"All right," he said.

The art of cranking a car is one that is not given to all men. Some of our greatest and wisest stand helpless before the task. It is a job toward the consummation of which a noble soul and a fine brain help, and at all. A man may have all the other gifts and yet be unable to accomplish a task the fellow at the garage does with one quiet quick flick of the wrist without even bothering to remove his chewing gum. This being so, it was not only unkind but foolish of Billie to grow impatient as Broom's repeated efforts failed of their object. It was wrong of her to elch her tongue, and certainly she ought not to have told Broom that he was not fit to crank her. But women are an emotional sex and must be forgiven much in moments of mental stress.

"Give it a good sharp twist," she said.

"All right," said Broom.

"Here, let me do it," cried Billie.

She jumped down and snatched the thingummy from his hand. With her brows and set teeth she wrenched it round. The engine gave a faint protesting mutter, like a dog that has been disturbed in its sleep, and was still once more.

"May I help?"

It was not Broom who spoke, but a strange voice—a sepulchral voice, the sort of voice some one would have used in one of Edgar Allan Poe's tales if he had been buried alive and were speaking from the family vault. Coming suddenly out of the night it affected Broom painfully. He uttered a sharp exclamation and gave a bound which, if he had been a Russian dancer, would probably have caused the management to raise his salary. He was in no frame of mind to bear up under sudden sepulchral voices.

Billie, on the other hand, was pleased. The midnight spirit was just what she needed to keep her from being unequal to the task which she had chided Broom for being unable to perform and this was mortifying her.

"Oh, would you mind? Thank you so much. The self-starter has gone wrong."

Into the glare of the headlights there stepped a strange figure, strange, that is to say, in the time-and-modern times. In the Middle Ages he would have excited no comment at all. He would simply have been said to be a ghost. He was a figure of the Middle Ages, and would have been on their way with a devil's grin. But in the present age it is always somewhat startling to see a bearded head pop up in front of your automobile. At any rate, it startled Broom. I will go further. It gave Broom the shock of a lifetime. He had had shocks already that night, but none compared with this. Or perhaps it was that this shock, coming on top of those shocks, affected him more disastrously than it would have done if it had been the first of the series instead of the last. One may express the thing briefly by saying that, as far as Broom was concerned, Sam's unconventional appearance put the lid on it. He did not hesitate. He did not pause to make comments or ask questions. With a single cutting sweep which took years of the lives of the abruptly awakened birds roosting in the neighboring trees, he dashed away towards the house and, reaching his room, locked the door and pushed the bed, the chest of drawers, two chairs, the towel stand and three pairs of shoes against it. Only then did he feel comparatively safe.

Out on the drive Billie was staring at the man in armor who had now, with a muscular wrench which informed the car right away that he would stand no nonsense, set the engine going again.

"Why—why," she stammered, "why are you wearing that thing on your head?"

"Because I can't get it off,"

Hollow as the voice was, Billie recognized it.

"S—Mr. Marlowe!" she exclaimed.

"Get in," said Sam. He had seated himself at the steering wheel. "Where can I take you?"

"Go away!" said Billie.

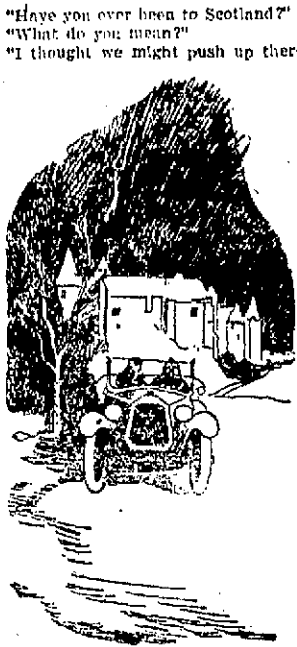

"Get in!"

"I don't want to talk to you."

"I want to talk to you. Get in!"

"I won't."

Sam bent over the side of the car, put his hands under her arms, lifted her like a kitten and deposited her on the seat beside him. Then, throwing in the clutch, he drove at an extraordinary speed down the drive and out into the silent road. Strange creatures of the night came and went in the golden glow of the headlights.

"Have You Ever Been to Scotland?"

"We've got to go somewhere and, oddly enough, I've never been to Scotland," Billie regarded him blankly.

"Are you crazy?"

"I'm crazy about you. If you know what I've gone through tonight for your sake you'd be more sympathetic. I love you," said Sam, swerving to avoid a rabbit. "And what's more, you know it."

"I've engaged to Broom Mortimer."

"No, no, that's all off," Sam assured her.

"It's not."

"Right off!" said Sam firmly. "You could never bring yourself to marry a man who dashed away like that and deserted you in your hour of need. Why, for all he knew, I might have tried to murder you. And he ran away! No, no, we eliminate Broom Mortimer once and for all. He won't do."

"This was so exactly what Billie was feeling herself that she could not bring herself to dispute it.

"Anyway, I hate you," she said, closing the conversation another turn.

"Why in the name of goodness, why?"

"How dared you make a fool of me in your father's office that morning?"

"It was a sudden inspiration. I had to do something to make you think well of me, and I thought it might meet the case if I saved you from a little with a pistol. It wasn't my fault that you found out."

"I shall never forgive you!"

"Well, I hope you're fond of motor-cars," said Sam, "because we're going on all day."

"Very well! Go on, then!"

"Of course, it's all right now while it's dark. But have you considered what is going to happen when the sun gets up? We shall have a sort of triumphal procession. How the small boys will laugh when they see a man in a helmet go by in a car! I shan't notice them myself because it's a little difficult to notice anything from inside this thing, but I'm afraid it will be rather unpleasant for you. I know what we'll do. We'll go to London and drive up and down Piccadilly. That will be fun."

"There was a long silence."

"Is my helmet on straight?" said Sam.

Billie made no reply. She was looking before her down the hedge-bordered road. Always a girl of sudden impulse, she had just made a curious discovery, to wit, that she was enjoying herself. There was something so novel and exhilarating about this midnight ride that imperceptibly her dismay and resentment had ebbed away. She found herself struggling with a desire to laugh.

The now dignity and wrath combined had kept Billie from making any inquiries into a matter which had excited in her a quite painful curiosity. In her new mood she resisted the impulse no longer.

"Why are you wearing that thing?"

"I told you. Purely and simply because I can't get it off. You don't suppose I'm trying to set a new style in gents' headwear, do you?"

"But why did you ever put it on?"

"Well, it was this way. After I came out of the cupboard in the drawing room, I saw—"

"Didn't I tell you about that? Oh, yes, I was sitting in the cupboard in the drawing room from dinner-time onwards. After that I came out and started cannoning about among Aunt Adeline's china, so I thought I'd better switch the light on. Unfortunately I switched on some sort of musical instrument instead. And then somebody started shooting. So, what with one thing and another, I thought it would be best to hide somewhere. I hid in one of the suits of armor in the hall."

"Were you inside there all the time we were—"

"Yes, I say, that was funny about Broom, wasn't it? Getting under the bed, I mean."

"Don't let's talk about Broom."

"That's the right spirit! I like to see it! All right, we won't. Let's get back to the main issue. Will you marry me?"

"But why did you come to the house at all?"

"To see you."

"To see me! At that time of night?"

"Well, perhaps not actually to see you." Sam was a little perplexed for a moment. Something told him that it would be injudicious to reveal his true motive and thereby risk disturbing the harmony which he felt had begun to exist between them. "To be near you! To be in the same house with you!" he went on vehemently, feeling that he had struck the right note. "You don't know the anguish I went through after I read that letter of yours. I was mad! I was . . . well, to return to the point, will you marry me?"

Billie sat looking straight before her. The car, now on the main road, moved smoothly on.

"Will you marry me?"

"Oh, don't talk like a parrot," cried Billie. "It reminds me of Broom."

"But will you?"

"Yes," said Billie.

Sam brought the car to a standstill with a jerk, probably very bad for the tires.

"Darling!" said Sam, leaning towards her.

"Oh, curse this helmet!"

"Why?"

"Well, I rather wanted to kiss you and it hampers me."

"Let me try and get it off. Bend down."

"Duch!" said Sam.

"It's coming. There! How helpless men are!"

"We need a woman's tender care," said Sam, depositing the helmet on the floor of the car, and rubbing his smarting ears. "Billie!"

"Sam!"

"You angel!"

"You're rather a darling after all," said Billie. "But you must keep in order," she added severely.

"You will do that when we're married. When we're married?" he repeated hesitantly.

"The only trouble is," said Billie, "father won't hear of it."

"No, he won't. Not till it is all over," said Sam.

He started the car again.

"What are you going to do?" said Billie. "Where are you going?"

"To London," said Sam. "It may be news to you, but the old lawyer like myself knows that, by going to Doctors' Commons or the Court of Arches or somewhere, or by routing the archbishop of Canterbury out of bed or something, you can get a special license and be married almost before you know where you are. My scheme—roughly—is to do this special license out of whoever keeps such things, have a bit of breakfast, and then get married at our leisure before lunch at a registrar's."

"Oh, not a registrar's?" said Billie.

"No."

"I should hate a registrar's."

"Very well, angel. Just as you say. We'll go to a church. There are millions of churches in London. I've seen them all over the place. I've missed for a moment. 'Yes, you're quite right,' he said. 'A church is the thing. I'll please Webster.'"

"Webster?"

"Yes, he's rather keen on the church bells never having rung out so little a peal before. And we must consider Webster's feelings. After all, he brought us together."

"Webster? How?"

"Oh, I'll tell you all about that some other time," said Sam. "Just for the moment, I want to sit quite still and think. Are you comfortable? Fine! Then off we go."

The birds in the trees fringing the road stirred and twittered grumpily as the noise of the engine disturbed their slumbers. But, if they had known it, they were in luck. At any rate, the worst had not befallen them, for Sam was too happy to mind.

(THE END.)

"Duch!" said Sam.

"It's coming. There! How helpless men are!"

"We need a woman's tender care," said Sam, depositing the helmet on the floor of the car, and rubbing his smarting ears. "Billie!"

"Sam!"

"You angel!"

"You're rather a darling after all," said Billie. "But you must keep in order," she added severely.

"You will do that when we're married. When we're married?" he repeated hesitantly.

"The only trouble is," said Billie, "father won't hear of it."

"No, he won't. Not till it is all over," said Sam.

He started the car again.

"What are you going to do?" said Billie. "Where are you going?"

"To London," said Sam. "It may be news to you, but the old lawyer like myself knows that, by going to Doctors' Commons or the Court of Arches or somewhere, or by routing the archbishop of Canterbury out of bed or something, you can get a special license and be married almost before you know where you are. My scheme—roughly—is to do this special license out of whoever keeps such things, have a bit of breakfast, and then get married at our leisure before lunch at a registrar's."

"Oh, not a registrar's?" said Billie.

"No."

"I should hate a registrar's."

"Very well, angel. Just as you say. We'll go to a church. There are millions of churches in London. I've seen them all over the place. I've missed for a moment. 'Yes, you're quite right,' he said. 'A church is the thing. I'll please Webster.'"

"Webster?"

"Yes, he's rather keen on the church bells never having rung out so little a peal before. And we must consider Webster's feelings. After all, he brought us together."

"Webster? How?"

"Oh, I'll tell you all about that some other time," said Sam. "Just for the moment, I want to sit quite still and think. Are you comfortable? Fine! Then off we go."

The birds in the trees fringing the road stirred and twittered grumpily as the noise of the engine disturbed their slumbers. But, if they had known it, they were in luck. At any rate, the worst had not befallen them, for Sam was too happy to mind.

(THE END.)

pose I'm trying to set a new style in gents' headwear, do you?"

"But why did you ever put it on?"

"Well, it was this way. After I came out of the cupboard in the drawing room, I saw—"

"Didn't I tell you about that? Oh, yes, I was sitting in the cupboard in the drawing room from dinner-time onwards. After that I came out and started cannoning about among Aunt Adeline's china, so I thought I'd better switch the light on. Unfortunately I switched on some sort of musical instrument instead. And then somebody started shooting. So, what with one thing and another, I thought it would be best to hide somewhere. I hid in one of the suits of armor in the hall."

"Were you inside there all the time we were—"

"Yes, I say, that was funny about Broom, wasn't it? Getting under the bed, I mean."

"Don't let's talk about Broom."

"That's the right spirit! I like to see it! All right, we won't. Let's get back to the main issue. Will you marry me?"

"But why did you come to the house at all?"

"To see you."

"To see me! At that time of night?"

"Well, perhaps not actually to see you." Sam was a little perplexed for a moment. Something told him that it would be injudicious to reveal his true motive and thereby risk disturbing the harmony which he felt had begun to exist between them. "To be near you! To be in the same house with you!" he went on vehemently, feeling that he had struck the right note. "You don't know the anguish I went through after I read that letter of yours. I was mad! I was . . . well, to return to the point, will you marry me?"

Billie sat looking straight before her. The car, now on the main road, moved smoothly on.

"Will you marry me?"

"Oh, don't talk like a parrot," cried Billie. "It reminds me of Broom."

"But will you?"

"Yes," said Billie.

Sam brought the car to a standstill with a jerk, probably very bad for the tires.

"Darling!" said Sam, leaning towards her.

"Oh, curse this helmet!"

"Why?"

"Well, I rather wanted to kiss you and it hampers me."

"Let me try and get it off. Bend down."

"Duch!" said Sam.

"It's coming. There! How helpless men are!"
